

Internet Domain Name Registration

The significance of the Internet (and particularly its role in business) cannot be understated. It is critical that modern organisations embrace the Internet as a mechanism to provide increased levels of service, lower operational costs and open markets that might have otherwise been unavailable. As an information tool, the Internet remains unequalled.

In keeping with our commitment to provide our clients with the most up-to-date services, it is no surprise to us at ACIS that our next growth phase will be centred on Internet services and products.

Early 1999 has seen the launch of our Domain Name Registration (DomainReg) service, as a logical product to accompany the incorporation of a company or registration of a trading name. We believe it prudent for all new trading concerns to consider registration of their Domain Name simultaneously with their company or business name, as an Internet presence could be crucial to their ongoing success.

To facilitate DomainReg, ACIS have formed a partnership with Intrapower Pty. Ltd., a leading supplier of Internet and related services. We have already custom-built a FREE search engine capable of checking over 3.5 million records in 1/100th of a second. The result is that our new system will generate an almost instantaneous response to a query concerning the availability of a proposed domain name. This engine is the fastest on the market and is the only system of its type that checks all major domestic and international domains, with one compact response screen being returned.

DomainReg is the next step in the evolution of our services at ACIS and you will soon notice that all relevant ACIS order forms have been altered to include domain name registration. We are also presently planning the inclusion of Trademark "Exact Name" searching, Common Law name searching and, ultimately, on-line ordering of all ACIS products.

Our aim at ACIS is to continue to be a step ahead of our competitors by seeking to provide innovative services that exceed our client's expectations.
